WIND, WATER AND TIDE DEVASTATE BRITAIN

HEAVY TOLL TAKEN IN LIVES AND PROPERTY

ELEVEN KNOWN DROWNED, SIX OTHERS MISSING IN LONDON

THAMES, DRIVEN BY HIGH TIDE, LEAVES ITS BANKS
TODAY

London, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Wind, water and tide devastated Great Britain today, drove thousands from their homes in London, and took a heavy toll in lives and property.

Eleven were known to have been drowned and six others were missing in London where the river Thames, driven by an abnormally high tide, left its banks and overflowed the low-lying sections of the city.

It was feared the death toll would mount due to belated discoveries of bodies in flooded basements. It will be days before the water can be pumped from many of the buildings.

The historic tower of London and the house of parliament were flooded. An army of rats, routed by the waters, scurried across London Bridge, and crowds which had gathered to view the devastation retreated in fear.

The river wall burst at Westminster, and the flood swept through that district, endangering thousands. Most of those who were lost were trapped while sleeping in basement apartments.

Mounted police galloped through the streets, sounding the alarm. Men, women and children, aroused from sleep, ran into the streets in their night clothes and were assisted by police and soldiers to higher sections of the city.

Fire engines and ambulances were called out but were unable to penetrate the flooded areas.

The water was five feet deep in the Hammersmith, Vauxhall, Chelsea, Fulham and Westminster districts.

Power plants were put out of commission and electric lights failed in many buildings, including St. Thomas' hospital. The waters overflowed the Thames embankment between Blackfriars and Waterloo bridges and tram service was suspended. Several feet of water flowed into the United Press building and nearby newspaper offices manned pumps to save the presses.

Fire engines were sent to assist in the pumping.

The flood began shortly after midnight and by mid-morning the Thames was comparatively low again, with the streets drained of water and tram cars running through some streets. The desolation in Lambeth was believed unprecedented.

The Westminster city engineer announced the possibility of another high tide between one and two P. M. Temporary barricades were erected to replace 50 yards of wall broken along Grosvenor Road in the Lambeth district.

The districts worst affected were Westminster, Vauxhall and Lambeth. Four sisters named Harding, ranging in age from three to 18, were trapped while sleeping in a basement on Grosvenor Road and were drowned. The other dead included a 76-year-old crippled woman, three other women, a 17-year-old boy and two men.

Tributaries of the Thames rose and the River Teddington was at the highest point in living memory. In the tower of London, the waters reached the jewel house. Lambeth Palace, residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury, also was flooded.

Reports from the lower Thames reported similar damage. The water was four feet in Cannington, six at Deptford and five at Bermondsey.

A high tide was reported at Gravesend which covered parts of the town under two feet of water. At Leigh-on-the-Sea the lower part of the town was under six feet.

The flood came in the wake of recent floods over the whole south of England and blizzards which were followed by a 60-mile gale. At least six were killed and hundreds injured by the gale which reached a velocity of 92 miles an hour.

WOMEN SCREAM AND YOUNG BANDIT FLEES

Minneapolis, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—A 16-year-old bandit fled without loot when two of three women he tried to hold up late Friday screamed.

The youth halted Mrs. Rose Stromquist, Mrs. Fred Hullahan and Mrs. Irving Wolf. He waved a revolver at them and demanded their cash. Mrs. Stromquist and Mrs. Hullahan, disregarding the weapon, started to yell. Unfazed by the screams, the youth fled.

FRENCH TAKE UP ANTI-WAR PACT ISSUES

MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS TO BE INSERTED IN THE TREATY

AMERICAN IDEA THAT TREATY
BE MULTI-LAT-ERAL

Washington, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—The French government favors America's suggestion for an international declaration against war but recommends insertion of the word "aggressive" before the word "war."

The French government reply was made public today by the United States department. It was dated Jan. 5 and was signed by Ambassador Claudel.

The reply renewed the French suggestion that France and the United States sign the treaty before other nations do so, but accepted the general American idea that the treaty be multilateral.

A second French note regarding the separate arbitration treaty between the two governments has been received by Ambassador Claudel and will probably be delivered to the state department late today. It is understood to accept in general the provisions of the Kellogg draft treaty to replace the Root treaty expiring February 27. Though France suggests minor amplifications and changes, these are not expected to cause a controversy.

The Kellogg draft arbitration treaty contains a preamble expressing abhorrence of war and a provision for possible conciliation of disputes, in addition to compulsory arbitration of all juridical disputes excepting questions involving internal affairs, a third party, or the Monroe Doctrine. This Kellogg draft has also been submitted to Great Britain, Japan and other governments whose Root treaties expire this year.

London, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—The river Thames, pushed by a freak tide and the overflow of the recent floods, poured into London early today, driving thousands from their homes and trapping others asleep in basement apartments.

When it had receded later in the morning at least 13 and probably 20 others were missing, and heavy damage had been done in residential and warehouse districts and the historic sections of the old city.

As news came in from outlying sections of London this afternoon, the estimated death toll was 15 in the Westminster district, two in Putney, two in Hammersmith, and one in Hurlingham.

The flood, one of the greatest of modern times, was the climax of weeks of blizzards and floods all throughout England that left an ap-

MOTOR WORLD UNVEILS ITS NEW 1928 CREATIONS

INTRODUCES THEM TO AMERI-CAN PUBLIC AS GREATEST
VALUES IN CAR HISTORY

COMPETITION WILL BE HOTTEST
IN THE SMALL CAR
FIELD

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—The motor world today unveiled its 1928 creations and introduced them to the American public as the greatest values in automobile history.

With the opening of the National Automobile Show at Grand Central Palace, the nation's motor kings formally began a campaign of selling which promised to shatter endless records of competition.

No doubt existed as to where the competition would be hottest. It will be in the small car field, which in the last week has become the battle-ground of a long-awaited price war between four of America's greatest motor magnates.

Automobile men from all over the country were virtually unanimous today in the prediction that before the end of 1928 the price-slashing feud would exceed in its sensational developments anything the industry has ever known.

The new year, they agreed, will be truly a memorable one for the small-salaried motorist.

For almost three decades the man with a limited pocketbook waited for someone to challenge the supremacy of Ford. Then, in one sudden rush, there came not one challenger, but three. The firebrands have started, and more than a few of the thousands who attended the opening of the show today predicted a long, grim war, with possible fatalities, for the four powerful competitors—Ford, Chevrolet, Whippet and Star. Meanwhile, however, the immense crowds of manufacturers, dealers and motorists who gathered here contented themselves with their first inspection of the new models on display.

Generally speaking, the 1928 buyer of an automobile will get a smaller car in the high-priced class and a larger one in the low-priced group. The tendency, in other words, is toward making the wheelbase in inverse ratio to the price. Thus, the cars that once were big and unwieldy in traffic are becoming easier to handle, while the small ones are gaining a more imposing appearance.

Following the general trend among smaller cars this year, the Chevrolet, Dodge, Hupmobile, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Erskine and Falcon models are built on larger lines.

The chief feature of the new Dodge is a cutaway chassis, which, unlike that of other cars, does not protrude from under the body.

Chrysler is showing a special roadster with the fashionable basketry trimming.

Three new chassis were introduced in the Auburn exhibit.

An entirely new line attracted considerable attention to the Chandler exhibit.

The Cadillac bodies were virtually the same as those in the salon exhibition here recently, with several light-colored ones ruling favorites.

Buick came out with a new green sedan.

The Essex coach, breaking away from the old "box-car" lines, was hailed as a likely favorite in this year's market with its new body.

The Hudson, Essex's big brother, also sported new body models.

A light eight, to be known as the "68," was the new born child of the Marmon family. It will sell around $1,395.

ARRANGEMENTS TO EXECUTE GRAY AND MRS. SNYDER

EVEN THEIR LAWYERS HAVE FAINT HOPE OF STAYING EXECUTION

WARDEN LAWES SAYS TWO WILL BE EXECUTED THURSDAY
MIDNIGHT

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Arrangements for the execution of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray went forward at Sing Sing today, while apparently even their lawyers held little but faint hope of staying the execution.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes announced the execution would take place next Thursday shortly before midnight. It lay within his discretion to order it any time next week, under the court's sentence.

Edgar F. Hazleton, Mrs. Snyder's lawyer, said he would await Gov. Smith's decision on the appeal for clemency before making any further effort to stay the execution. He said he expected the decision by Tuesday. Hazleton's only apparent hope was the slim one of having argument set for Jan. 13 on a jury trial in the suit contesting the $97,000 insurance on the life of Albert Snyder, Mrs. Snyder's murdered husband. It might be shown that Mrs. Snyder's presence was essential as a witness in the suit, in which case the execution would have to be postponed if she were to testify.

Warden Lawes announced that 24 persons, including 20 newspapermen would witness the execution.

Three state alienists who have examined the condemned pair several times will make their final examination on Wednesday, a routine matter.

Its new lines resemble those of the LaSalle.

Extremely broad mouldings in the bodies were the outstanding changes in the Peerless. The Essex, incidentally, has this feature also.

Nash, following a more or less general tendency of the last few years, built a lower-slung car.

New eight-cylinder models selling around $1,500 on delivery here from South Bend, Ind., were in the Studebaker exhibit.

Ford was not represented in the show, having declined to enter for the last several years. The Dearborn magnate's cars and other Ford products will be displayed at a special industrial exposition, which will start Monday in Madison Square Garden. It has been advertised as "one of the largest and most comprehensive exhibitions ever staged by a single industrial organization."

New York, Jan. 7.—The cars in the new price war now being waged among four of America's greatest automobile manufacturers and their F. O. B. prices, follow:

| Model        | Ford  | Star | Whip | Chev |
|--------------|-------|------|------|------|
| Sedan 2-door | $495 | 545  | 535  | 585  |
| Sedan 4-door | $570 | 570  | 585  | 675  |
| Touring      | $385 | 385  | 455  | 495  |
| Coupe        | $495 | 495  | 535  | 595  |
| Roadster     | $385 | 495  | 485  | 495  |

TO JOIN "DEVIL DOG" COMRADES FIGHTING SANDINO

HEADED BY LEJEUNE ONE SEC-TION SAILS FROM EAST COAST PORTS

ANOTHER DETACHMENT SETS
SAIL FROM THE WEST COAST

Washington, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—In the east and west today, 1,148 marines and officers were converging on Hampton Roads, Va., Charleston, S. C., and San Diego, Calif., preparatory to departing Monday to join their "Devil Dog" comrades fighting the rebel leader, Sandino, in Nicaragua.

Headed by Major General John Lejeune, marine corps commandant, 681 will sail from the east coast ports, and 467 will embark on the west coast. Lejeune will leave from Charleston, and the transport carrying the forces from Hampton Roads is expected to depart simultaneously.

Lejeune will spend 10 days or two weeks in Nicaragua inspecting U. S. forces and looking over the area where the marines will endeavor to eliminate Sandino before the Nicaraguan presidential election in August.

The 1,148 men leaving Monday will bring the total American forces in Nicaragua to 2,454 men. The new force will be organized into one regimental headquarters company consisting of 147 men, and two battalions to be known as the first and second battalions, composed of 467 men each.

Twenty-four naval medical officers and 70 hospital corpsmen will accompany the new force.

One mounted battery, consisting of four 3-inch guns, to be used in the mountains against Sandino, is being sent along with the marines. It was said at marine headquarters.

SKIES OF STATE TO REMAIN CLEAR

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Though the prediction for Sunday's weather is "somewhat colder," the skies over most of Minnesota will remain clear, the weather bureau reported today.

The minimum temperature tonight in the southern and central sections of the state will be about 25 degrees, while it will be slightly colder in the north.

Temperatures well above the zero mark are reported today throughout the northwest.

GOV. DONAHEY SEEKS TO END OHIO COAL STRIKE

Columbus, O., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Gov. Viv Donahey today called upon Ohio mine operators and union officials to meet with him here on Jan. 16, in an effort to end the state's coal strike which began last April.

In a letter to district union officials and S. H. Robbins, president of the Ohio Coal Operators association, the governor said he hoped each side would attend the conference "openmindedly and not prepared to deliver ultimatums."

Scores of miners' families in the state's unionized districts are verging on starvation and are without clothing and fuel, the executive pointed out.

SUFFERS SHOCK AFTER CAR MISHAP, SLEEPS 100 HOURS

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Suffering severe shock from an automobile accident, Mrs. Nora Anderson, 36, fell into a sound slumber here last Monday and had not awakened early today, according to her physicians.

The woman had been asleep for over 100 hours and in that time her hair turned gray.

Doctors predicted Mrs. Anderson will recover but admitted they are puzzled by the case.

GOVERNMENT HAS HALF MILLION CLAIM AGAINST LEVINE

WHOLE MATTER MAY BE SET-TLED OUT OF COURT NEXT WEEK

GROWS OUT OF CONTRACTS FOR HANDLING SURPLUS WAR MATERIAL

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY

Washington, Jan. 7.—The government's $500,000 claim against Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic flyer, may be settled out of court next week. If it is not, the government intends to take into court the claims against Levine, growing out of contracts for handling surplus war material, the justice department revealed today.

Attorney General Sargent has instructed federal attorneys to advise Levine's counsel the government is through arguing, and that a settlement must be reached immediately or a suit will be instituted.

The United States, it is authoritatively understood, is willing to compromise its claim for $300,000 while Levine is said to be insisting on $100,000 settlement.

Justice officials said that immediately after the war Levine contracted with the war department to handle old munitions and other surplus military material. He bought material at a flat price and then deducted freight costs when making payments to the United States. It was alleged.

The government also contends Levine owes money from a profit-plus arrangement, under which Levine is said to have made a small fortune.

Officials said Levine made millions of dollars from his war surplus material business and then began manufacturing airplanes. Last year, Clarence Chamberlin piloted one of Levine's planes, the Columbia, from New York to Berlin and Levine took the hop as a passenger.

NORRIS FRIENDS WORK IN WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Nomination papers are to be placed in circulation in Wisconsin within a few days for the candidacy of George W. Norris, United States senator from Nebraska, as a candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency. It was learned by the United Press here today.

The United Press was also informed that two, and perhaps three, of the candidates selected to run for republican national convention delegates on the La Follette slate have declined to be candidates before the voters at the April election.

ARREST YOUTHS AS ALLEGED MEMBERS OF AUTO THEFT GANG

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Five youths, from 16 to 19 years of age, were arrested here today as alleged members of an automobile theft gang. Through their confessions, according to police, more than a dozen car thefts have been cleared.

Detectives arrested one of the boys shortly after midnight and after being questioned for more than an hour he made statements implicating four other boys. They were rounded up before dawn, and two hours later, police said, confessions from all of those under arrest had been obtained.

OCEANS

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 7.—Flying safely over the mountains and volcanoes of Costa Rica, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh reached San Jose at 1:51 P. M. (1:27 P. M. C. S. T.) today.

Lindbergh was acclaimed at Sabana air field by 50,000 persons, probably the largest throng ever to gather in San Jose.

The 210-mile flight from Managua consumed two hours and 39 minutes.

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Bound for Costa Rica, the sixth state on his all conquering tour of Central America, Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh took off in the Spirit of St. Louis at 11:03 A. M. (11:48 A. M. eastern standard time) today.

Leaving behind him an enormous cheering throng that echoed the enthusiastic welcome given by all Nicaragua in the last two days, Lindbergh headed southeast on the 210-mile course that will carry him over the picturesque, lofty mountains of Costa Rica and their volcanoes.

When he nears San Jose, Lindbergh, who spanned the Atlantic, will have the privilege of a rare sight. From his plane, skimming over the mountains, which rise 10,000 feet above sea level, he will be able to see both the Atlantic and Pacific, separated by the narrow strip of land that is Costa Rica.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying here from Managua, crossed over the Costa Rican frontier at 1 P. M. (12:36 P. M. central standard time). At 1:15 P. M. Lindbergh passed over Alfara Ruiz.

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed his peaceful conquest of another Central American republic today and was ready to move on to Costa Rica, where another stirring welcome awaited him.

The climax of his stay here was reached with the presentation before a joint session of congress yesterday of a gold medal commemorative of his visit.

All questions of politics and the internal dissension which caused the United States to send marines in intervention were forgotten during the visit of the unofficial American ambassador and no untoward incident marked his stay.

Lindbergh was expected to start well before noon in the Spirit of St. Louis for San Jose, Costa Rica, 210 miles away, on the sixth stage of his Central American tour.

TO JOIN "DEVIL DOG" COMRADES FIGHTING SANDINO

HEADED BY LEJEUNE ONE SECTION SAILS FROM EAST COAST PORTS

ANOTHER DETACHMENT SETS SAIL FROM THE WEST COAST

Washington, Jan. 7.—(UP)—In the east and west today, 1,148 marines and officers were converging on Hampton Roads, Va., Charleston, S. C., and San Diego, Calif., preparatory to departing Monday to join their "Devil Dog" comrades fighting the rebel leader, Sandino, in Nicaragua.

Headed by Major General John Lejeune, marine corps commandant, 681 will sail from the east coast ports, and 467 will embark on the west coast. Lejeune will leave from Charleston, and the transport carrying the forces from Hampton Roads is expected to depart simultaneously.

Lejeune will spend 10 days or two weeks in Nicaragua inspecting U. S. forces and looking over the area where the marines will endeavor to eliminate Sandino before the Nicaraguan presidential election in August.

The 1,148 men leaving Monday will bring the total American forces in Nicaragua to 2,454 men. The new force will be organized into one regimental headquarters company consisting of 147 men, and two battalions to be known as the first and second battalions, composed of 467 men each.

Twenty-four naval medical officers and 70 hospital corpsmen will accompany the new force.

One mounted battery, consisting of four 3-inch guns, to be used in the mountains against Sandino, is being sent along with the marines. It was said at marine headquarters.

SKIES OF STATE TO REMAIN CLEAR

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Though the prediction for Sunday's weather is "somewhat colder," the skies over most of Minnesota will remain clear, the weather bureau reported today.

The minimum temperature tonight in the southern and central sections of the state will be about 25 degrees, while it will be slightly colder in the north.

Temperatures well above the zero mark are reported today throughout the northwest.

HARRY J. ACTON IS NOW ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Harry J. Acton, who since 1925 was private secretary to Governor Theodore Christianson was today appointed assistant attorney general, to take office Monday.

GOV. DONAHAY SEEKS TO END OHIO COAL STRIKE

Columbus, O., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Gov. Viv Donahay today called upon Ohio mine operators and union officials to meet with him here on Jan. 16, in an effort to end the state's coal strike which began last April.

In a letter to district union officials and S. H. Robbins, president of the Ohio Coal Operators association, the governor said he hoped each side would attend the conference "openmindedly and not prepared to deliver ultimatums."

Scores of miners' families in the state's unmined districts are verging on starvation and are without clothing and fuel, the executive pointed out.

SUFFERS SHOCK AFTER CAR MISHAP, SLEEPS 100 HOURS

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Suffering severe shock from an automobile accident, Mrs. Nora Anderson, 36, fell into a sound slumber here last Monday and had not awakened early today, according to her physicians.

The woman had been asleep for over 100 hours and in that time her hair turned gray.

Doctors predicted Mrs. Anderson will recover but admitted they are puzzled by the case.

GOVERNMENT HAS HALF MILLION CLAIM AGAINST LEVINE

WHOLE MATTER MAY BE SETTLED OUT OF COURT NEXT WEEK

GROWS OUT OF CONTRACTS FOR HANDLING SURPLUS WAR MATERIAL

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY

Washington, Jan. 7.—The government's $500,000 claim against Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic flyer, may be settled out of court next week. If it is not, the government intends to take into court the claims against Levine, growing out of contracts for handling surplus war material, the justice department revealed today.

Attorney General Sargent has instructed federal attorneys to advise Levine's counsel the government is through arguing, and that a settlement must be reached immediately or a suit will be instituted.

The United States, it is authoritatively understood, is willing to compromise its claim for $300,000 while Levine is said to be insisting on $100,000 settlement.

Justice officials said that immediately after the war Levine contracted with the war department to handle old munitions and other surplus military material. He bought material at a flat price and then deducted freight costs when making payments to the United States. It was alleged.

The government also contends Levine owes money from a profit-loss arrangement, under which Levine is said to have made a small fortune.

Officials said Levine made millions of dollars from his war surplus material business and then began manufacturing airplanes. Last year, Clarence Chamberlin piloted one of Levine's planes, the Columbia, from New York to Berlin and Levine took the hop as a passenger.

NORRIS FRIENDS WORK IN WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Nomination papers are to be placed in circulation in Wisconsin within a few days for the candidacy of George W. Norris, United States senator from Nebraska, as a candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency, it was learned by the United Press here today.

The United Press was also informed that two, and perhaps three, of the candidates selected to run for republican national convention delegates on the La Follette slate have declined to be candidates before the voters at the April election.

ARREST YOUTHS AS ALLEGED MEMBERS OF AUTO THEFT GANG

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Five youths, from 16 to 19 years of age, were arrested here today as alleged members of an automobile theft gang. Through their confessions, according to police, more than a dozen car thefts have been cleared.

Detectives arrested one of the boys shortly after midnight and after being questioned for more than an hour he made statements implicating four other boys. They were rounded up before dawn, and two hours later, police said, confessions from all of those under arrest had been obtained.

SIXTH CENTRAL AMERICAN STATE TO BE VISITED

LEAVES BEHIND HIM AT MANAGUA ENORMOUS CHEERING CROWD

NEAR SAN JOSE LINDBERGH WILL GLIMPSE THE TWO OCEANS

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 7.—Flying safely over the mountains and volcanoes of Costa Rica, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh reached San Jose at 1:51 P. M. (1:27 P. M. C. S. T.) today.

Lindbergh was acclaimed at Sabana air field by 50,000 persons, probably the largest throng ever to gather in San Jose.

The 210-mile flight from Managua consumed two hours and 39 minutes.

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Bound for Costa Rica, the sixth state on his all conquering tour of Central America, Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh took off in the Spirit of St. Louis at 11:03 A. M. (11:48 A. M. eastern standard time) today.

Leaving behind him an enormous cheering throng that echoed the enthusiastic welcome given by all Nicaragua in the last two days, Lindbergh headed southeast on the 210-mile course that will carry him over the picturesque, lofty mountains of Costa Rica and their volcanoes.

When he nears San Jose, Lindbergh, who spanned the Atlantic, will have the privilege of a rare sight. From his plane, skimming over the mountains, which rise 10,000 feet above sea level, he will be able to see both the Atlantic and Pacific, separated by the narrow strip of land that is Costa Rica.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying here from Managua, crossed over the Costa Rican frontier at 1 P. M. (12:36 P. M. central standard time). At 1:15 P. M. Lindbergh passed over Alfara Ruiz.

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed his peaceful conquest of another Central American republic today and was ready to move on to Costa Rica, where another stirring welcome awaited him.

The climax of his stay here was reached with the presentation before a joint session of congress yesterday of a gold medal commemorative of his visit.

All questions of politics and the internal dissension which caused the United States to send marines in intervention were forgotten during the visit of the unofficial American ambassador and no untoward incident marked his stay.

Lindbergh was expected to start well before noon in the Spirit of St. Louis for San Jose, Costa Rica, 210 miles away, on the sixth stage of his Central American tour.

9 NEGROES BURNED TO DEATH IN MISSISSIPPI CABIN

Buckatunna, Miss., Jan. 7.—(UP)—Nine negroes were burned to death near here last night when fire destroyed the cabin in which they were sleeping. They were Calvin Smith and wife and five children, and two other children who were spending the night at the Smith home.

TROOPS OF GENERAL CHANG-TSO-LIN ENTER CHOCHOW

London, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Troops of General Chang-Tso-Lin have entered Chochow after 89 days siege, a Peking dispatch to the Daily Express said today.

The inhabitants were found starving and thousands of dead were lying unburied, the dispatch said.

Clara Bow and Charles Rogers in "Get Your Man," A Paramount Picture

Snappy Story of 1928 Has Clara Bow as Star

Bringing Clara Bow to the screen for her fourth starring picture with Paramount "Get Your Man" comes to the Lyceum theatre on Sunday and Monday. The madcap flapper of the screen, whose brilliant work in "It," "Rough House Rosie," and "Hula" has in her latest picture the same sort of role which won her laurels in her former parts.

The locale of the story is France where Miss Bow is an American tourist endeavoring to see Parisian life alone. There she meets a young Frenchman (Charles Rogers) and is forced to remain all night with him in a wax-works museum when the doors are locked by the night watchman who believes the place to be empty.

"3 GHOSTMEN" PRESSED RANSOM

WANTED $5500 FROM CLARENCE
SAUNDERS, PIGGLY WIGGLER
GROCER

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(UP)—
A heavy police guard was maintained today over the family of Clarence
Saunders, originator of the Piggly
Wiggly chain stores, as police continued their efforts to find the 'three ghostmen' who yesterday demanded
$5500 under a threat of violence.

Saunders turned the letter over to police, refusing to comply with the demand that the money be placed in a secluded spot or suffer the
"most brutal crime ever committed."
The letter was signed by "The Three Ghostmen."

"I don't care about myself," Saunders said today, "but I'm worried about my family. I'd give a thousand dollars to know the author."
Saunders has a daughter, Amy
Clare, 15, and two sons, Lee, 21, and
Clay, 18.

REMUS INCARCERATED IN INSANE ASYLUM

Lima, O., Jan. 7.—(UP)—The next
episode in the dramatic life of George
Remus, the former millionaire Cincinnati bootleg king who was acquitted of the murder of his wife, Imogene, centered today in the state hospital for the criminally insane here, where Remus was incarcerated last night.

Immediately upon his arrival, the former rum-runner appointed Francis Durbin and D. C. Henderson, two Lima attorneys, to begin habeas corpus proceedings in an effort to obtain his release. Similar proceedings in Cincinnati failed yesterday.

"3 GHOSTMEN" PRESSED RANSOM

WANTED $5500 FROM CLARENCE
SAUNDERS, PIGGLY WIGGLER
GROCER

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 7.—(UP)—
A heavy police guard was maintained today over the family of Clarence
Saunders, originator of the Piggly
Wiggly chain stores, as police continued their efforts to find the "three ghostmen" who yesterday demanded
$5500 under a threat of violence.

Saunders turned the letter over
to police, refusing to comply with the demand that the money be placed in a secluded spot or suffer the
"most brutal crime ever committed."
The letter was signed by "The Three Ghostmen."

"I don't care about myself," Saunders said today, "but I'm worried about my family. I'd give a thousand dollars to know the author."
Saunders has a daughter, Amy
Clare, 15, and two sons, Lee, 21, and
Clay, 18.

REMUS INCARCERATED IN INSANE ASYLUM

Lima, O., Jan. 7.—(UP)—The next
episode in the dramatic life of George
Remus, the former millionaire Cincinnati bootleg king who was acquitted of the murder of his wife, Imogene, centered today in the state hospital for the criminally insane here, where Remus was incarcerated last night.

Immediately upon his arrival, the former run-runner appointed Francis Durbin and D. C. Henderson, two Lima attorneys, to begin habeas corpus proceedings in an effort to obtain his release. Similar proceedings in Cincinnati failed yesterday.

BRAINERD HIGH BASKETBALL TEAM

BRAINERD high school certainly has a basketball team and a coach this year working wonders. The writer saw them play the tall, chesty, postgraduate Tech High fellows of St. Cloud, and the way the Brainerd crowd ran circles around the big boys was a caution.

Brainerd is used to a so-called cracker box floor, and many thought the transition to the big open field of the St. Cloud armory would work havoc with our small track boys.

The first quarter scored even honors. The half ended with Brainerd a few points ahead of St. Cloud Tech. It looked like anybody's game. Brainerd, however, had played a cautious game and like a wise field general was feeling out the ground.

At the half Kasch gave his charges one of those Knute Rockne lectures and other sage advice and when Brainerd took the floor again there was no more scoring for the St. Cloud Techs. They were completely blanketed in their offensive and as to making scores, there was no need of any score keeper for their side.

Brainerd had some 50 of the faithful in attendance and they yelled themselves hoarse. There was no cheer leader with white pants, no organized yelling, but when Brainerd made a point there came a deafening roar from the Brainerd section which hit the air with machine gun rapidity.

Brainerd showed its superiority in every branch and phase of the game.

"Our boys couldn't play tonight," said one St. Cloud supporter. And the Brainerd fans agreed.

Mayor Frank E. Little occupied a seat of honor on a rostrum in the Brainerd section. The referee was a kindly person and in mixups which were frequent often selected the men for a tip off by pulling them out of the ruckion, grabbing them by the seat of their pants. His work as a referee was exceptionally good and many times the man raced ahead of a play to be set for the finish.

And as to Coach Kasch, we have this to say. A man who gives up his vacation period and stays with his boys for vacation games, has his heart in his work and has the loyalty of his boys. And when it comes to athletic spirit, Brainerd high has as much spirit proportionately as Knute Rockne is able to assemble at Notre Dame. Like Lindbergh our boys assimilate a lot of praise but do not let it disturb their poise. Over-confidence, as every trainer knows, is something to guard against too.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

At last, according to the Minneapolis Journal, the government has come out flat-footed and stated who is the head of the family. The government makes the declaration and leaves it to Pa to enforce the dictum. The Journal says:

With fine complacency, the Bureau of Internal Revenue announces it has reached a definition of the descriptive phrase, "the head of the family." Hard pressed for years in application of the income tax regulations, at last the bureau chiefs think they have devised something to checkmate all comers, by this means:

The head of a family is an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, by marriage or by adoption and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based on some moral or legal obligation.

We can hear even now a dull rumble of dissent that must come from the National Woman's Party. On the air, too, is a murmur as from the Lucy Stone League of Maiden Namers. And from still another quarter, that of the Messieurs and Mesdames Fannie Hursts, Heywood Ruth Hale-Brouns, and the Hendrik Goodrich Van Loons, comes a whisper that bodes new revolt. Unless our ears deceive us, they will have none of it; they will cry havoc at the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and let loose something or other.

Not alone for presumption will the champions of a New Day assail the Bureau, in hanging its definition on "supports and maintains." If there is any body and substance to the principles of emancipated marriage, it has its foundation in the division of support and maintenance. But that will not comprise the summit of offense in the Bureau's definition. It rests on the Revenuers' choice of pronouns. There is the great flaw in the Bureau's accomplishment. For what does it say?

It says "Him." "He" is the head of the family. The male—he is it. There is no getting around it.

So it will be in vain that the Revenuers take refuge in the English language's grave lack of a pronoun of common gender to describe the head of the family. Him is him—and nothing more. However legal the definition may be, it will have to be superlegal, if the Bureau is to get away with it. For what the modernists want is not law, but justice, and how can there be justice, if it comport not with their philosophy?

HOW RUSSIA IS GOVERNED

NOMINALLY the present Russian government is organized something like a United States of Russia, consisting of a number of what are called allied republics that correspond somewhat to our states, General William Mitchell, U. S. A., who recently visited Russia, explains in an article in Liberty.

"These republics are supposed to be entirely autonomous, and retain their individual languages," explains the author.

"They elect representatives to a Congress which sits in the Grand Opera House in Moscow every year for about a week."

"This Congress has about 1,500 delegates. It elects, in turn, a central executive committee, which consists of about 400 members. They elect a committee called the Presidium, composed of twenty-one members. This body makes all the laws and attends to the administration. They elect heads of various departments, called People's Commissars, who correspond to the ministers in other countries. The department heads elect a chairman, who is really the president of the whole thing. He has as much power as any dictator anywhere."

SYNOPSIS

Mickey Grogan, orphaned habitue of The Dump, is saved from the ire of the truant officer by Jeffrey Shore, a strange young man who apparently has seen better days but is now nearly blind. To repay him, Mickey leads Jeffrey to the home of Winifred Davidson, his benefactor, and asks her to provide them lodging for the night. Unsuspecting as to what Mickey's intentions had been, Jeffrey is embarrassed by the proposal but accepts Winifred's offer of a bed in the attic. While they are there Al Nevins, a pugilist employed at the same factory as Winifred, calls and attempts to force his attentions on her but is repulsed. Winifred then offers to provide food but they decline her kindness and Mickey sets out for the corner delicatessen and, after ordering sandwiches, tells the proprietor to "charge it to me."

Suddenly, the tall angular proprietor jumped out from behind the counter, and without wasting a motion, grabbed Mickey off the floor by the back of his coat. "So," said Mr. Freyerschutz dumping Mickey callously into the street. "So," said Mr. Freyerschutz, dusting off his hands and disappearing within.

"Aw, so's your old man, you big stiff," Mickey called after him.

Next, the boy attempted to beg a nickel from a passerby, but the policeman on the beat, who knew Mickey well and always suspected him, came along, and the lad faded from sight as quickly as possible. He ducked down an alley and, safe there for a moment, paused in helpless dismay. What was he to do? Jeff must have something to eat—and his own stomach was like—wise sending out the usual desperate appeal for help.

"Ya couldn't hit the side of a barn!"

While Mickey was considering what he had better do, Winnie, in the attic, was earnestly asking the shabby young man, "What are you planning to do now?"

He shook his head. "I don't know. Without my eyes I can't continue my work. I was an architect, you see."

"Haven't you any people—friends or relatives?"

"I wouldn't go to my friends, and as for relatives—" he smiled wistfully. "I'm an orphan like Mickey."

"I know you're proud," said the girl sympathetically. "I could see that the moment I first looked at you. But I wouldn't give up if I were you. You must know a great deal about architecture, and even if you can't see very well, your knowledge ought to be helpful to anyone."

"Perhaps," he said. "But an architect without eyes is like a pianist without fingers. The pianist might be able to tell others how to play, but he'd die of heart-break because he couldn't play the melody with his own fingers."

"Please—please don't talk that way," Winifred beseeched him. "You mustn't take things so badly. I've always felt that the most desperate and discouraging situation has a way of righting itself. Promise me you'll try to cheer up a bit." She tightened her hold on his arm.

He patted her hand. "I will promise if it will make you happier."

"Thanks—Jeff. I'm going downstairs now. Can I bring you up something to eat?"

"Oh, thank you, no. I'm not a bit hungry—really, I'm not." And then he damned himself for a fool. That pride! It would be the ruin of him! But had she not done much for him already? He watched her disappear, and she seemed to take the silver rays of the moonlight with her.

"Good-night," she called.

"Good-night," he answered. And then more softly, "God bless you."

Meanwhile, in the alleyway, Mickey was peering wistfully through the back window of the same delicatessen store where he had failed to establish credit. He could see one of the cooks eating his supper, and as the man shoveled in great chunks of food, Mickey began to feel sick. Tightening the rope that held up his trousers, he turned miserably away.

"Crooked says," he muttered to himself, "that when you're doing something right in this world that Gawd 'll help you." He cracked his shin against a forgotten can in the alley way and let out a yelp of pain. At that moment, it did not look like God was inclined to help anyone. But in spite of appearances, Mickey straightened up and squared his shoulders. "I'll git somethin' to eat some way," he promised himself. And even as he spoke, a door opposite him opened, spreading a fan of light across the small, staunch figure.

Through the doorway came a big German noted for his ill temper. In his arms he carried a heap of stale rolls which he was about to throw in the garbage can when he spied Mickey. "Vell, what iss it?" he bellowed. "Maybe you vant some food to steal, you little loafer you, you good-for-nothings. Clear out—git a moo on py yourself."

"Who's goin' to make me?" jeered Mickey, but his tone was only half-hearted. He hadn't much fight left in him, but he thought that it would be a good idea to tell the baker a thing or two. For no man was going to call Mickey a "good-for-nothings" and get away with it.

"Aw, you're not in but a big fat head!" Mickey called to the baker. "If brains was ham you'd be smarter den the guy who writes the weather reports."

This taunt so enraged the baker that, for want of a better weapon, he threw a hard, stale roll straight at Mickey.

Even as Mickey dodged, inspiration flashed upon him. "Yaah!" he sang out in the most irritating cat-call he could summon to his assistance. "Ya big fat-head, ya couldn't hit the side of a barn!" Whereupon the baker threw another roll and yet another. Mickey ducked expertly but kept his eye on the rolls. The more of them he could get the better for himself and Jeff. He groped about for a missile to hurl back, just to encourage the barrage. His hand found an object, but when he saw that it was one of the precious rolls, he carefully laid it down again and grabbed, instead, the tin can he had stumbled over a moment before.

As he flung the can, the baker, suddenly wearied by his display of temper, retreated back into the bakery, and Mickey calmly gathered up the rolls, stuffing them into his various coat pockets until he bulged all over like a figure made of dough. "Crooked says," God helps those as helps themselves," chuckled Mickey. "An' I'm beginnin' to think that Crooked is right more times 'n he is wrong. Crooked says, if a man hits you, turn him the other cheek. 'Ats a darn good idea. An' what I say is, if Crooked should ever run for President, I'd vote for him as many times as I could."

On the way back to Winifred's attic, Mickey saw a bottle of milk set on the ledge of a lower window sill so that it might be kept cool. Climbing along the porch railing—without difficulty because of his burden—Mickey appropriated the bottle so richly white inside with milk. "Crooked says, Search an' ye will find," murmured Mickey. For a moment, Mickey hesitated. In this particular instance, Crooked might be wrong. Perhaps Crooked would have ordered him to put the bottle of milk back on the window-sill. But was Crooked ever so hungry?

"Oh well," said Mickey, carrying the milk off with him, I'll bring the bottle back."

The rise of Alexander Cabel, owner of the factory in which Winifred was employed, had been an extraordinarily rapid one, even in a country where men become millionaires over night. Cabel had begun, five years before as a clerk in a grocery store, and now, at thirty, he was owner of the National Food Products Company, the largest food of his kind in the world.

Young Cabel, himself, was unassuming and easy to address; he gave himself no airs and anyone of his employees might come to him personally with a grievance. In this respect, young Cabel was a magnate of the newer, younger school; and he believed in making those who worked for him his partners in the huge business. In appearance, Cabel was slim and athletic, with forward, frank manners and shrewd gray eyes. His energy was amazing to those who were frequently in his presence. He never seemed to tire, and was never at a loss to suggest something that might concern the welfare of his company. True, there were times when he was a bit ill-tempered and out-of-sorts; but they were exceedingly rare interludes in his busy career. And if others suffered any inconvenience because of these bad-tempered out-breaks, he was quick to notice it and was profuse in his apologies.

palling toll of dead, injured and destruction of property.

Six more were killed and hundreds injured in a gale that preceded the Thames flood, blowing at from 60 to 90 miles an hour across the country, tearing up trees, disrupting railroad and wire communication and working general havoc.

Police searched through London and its suburbs today for further victims of the Thames overflow, and it was feared the casualty list would mount. The known deaths rose to 13 when two girls were found in Hammersmith, trapped and drowned while asleep in their homes.

River walls went down under the weight of the water and warehouses along the river banks, which held rich merchandise were flooded and their contents ruined.

The lower sections of the Tate Gallery, one of the world's storehouses of art, were flooded and irreparable damage done. Fifteen thousand Turner sketches in about 100 portfolios, valued at thousands of pounds sterling intrinsically but from the artistic viewpoint priceless and irreplaceable, were destroyed. Many pictures of lesser value were destroyed.

It was feared high tide this afternoon would bring a repetition of the flood but experts announced the danger was over. The water reached its crest and began to recede without doing further appreciable damage.

Thousands had gathered along the Thames embankment and lined the bridges to watch the spectacle of the tide coming up the river.

At Heybridge, Essex, a tidal wave swept into the basin, inundating the town under three to six feet of water. Nearly 300 houses were flooded.

There are thousands who can face guns to tens who can face ridicule, or unpopularity. Many a man can stand unblenched in face of a lion, who shrinks into a spineless jellyfish before a gust of scornful laughter. Physical courage is not uncommon. Moral courage is rarer, and is one of the highest qualities a man can possess.

BRAINERD HIGH BASKETBALL TEAM

BRAINERD high school certainly has a basketball team and a coach this year working wonders. The writer saw them play the tall, chesty, postgraduate Tech High fellows of St. Cloud, and the way the Brainerd crowd ran circles around the big boys was a caution.

Brainerd is used to a so-called cracker box floor, and many thought the transition to the big open field of the St. Cloud armory would work havoc with our small track boys.

The first quarter scored even honors. The half ended with Brainerd a few points ahead of St. Cloud Tech. It looked like anybody's game. Brainerd, however, had played a cautious game and like a wise field general was feeling out the ground.

At the half Kasch gave his charges one of those Knute Rockne lectures and other sage advice and when Brainerd took the floor again there was no more scoring for the St. Cloud Techs. They were completely blanketed in their offensive and as to making scores, there was no need of any score keeper for their side.

Brainerd had some 50 of the faithful in attendance and they yelled themselves hoarse. There was no cheer leader with white pants, no organized yelling, but when Brainerd made a point there came a deafening roar from the Brainerd section which hit the air with machine gun rapidity.

Brainerd showed its superiority in every branch and phase of the game.

"Our boys couldn't play tonight," said one St. Cloud supporter. And the Brainerd fans agreed.

Mayor Frank E. Little occupied a seat of honor on a rostrum in the Brainerd section. The referee was a kindly person and in mixups which were frequent often selected the men for a tip off by pulling them out of the ruckion, grabbing them by the seat of their pants. His work as a referee was exceptionally good and many times the man raced ahead of a play to be set for the finish.

And as to Coach Kasch, we have this to say. A man who gives up his vacation period and stays with his boys for vacation games, has his heart in his work and has the loyalty of his boys. And when it comes to athletic spirit, Brainerd high has as much spirit proportionately as Knute Rockne is able to assemble at Notre Dame. Like Lindbergh our boys assimilate a lot of praise but do not let it disturb their poise. Over-confidence, as every trainer knows, is something to guard against too.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY

AT last, according to the Minneapolis Journal, the government has come out flat-footed and stated who is the head of the family. The government makes the declaration and leaves it to Pa to enforce the dictum. The Journal says:

With fine complacency, the Bureau of Internal Revenue announces it has reached a definition of the descriptive phrase, "the head of the family." Hard pressed for years in application of the income tax regulations, at last the bureau chiefs think they have devised something to checkmate all comers, by this means:

The head of a family is an individual who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, by marriage or by adoption and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based on some moral or legal obligation.

We can hear even now a dull rumble of dissent that must come from the National Woman's Party. On the air, too, is a murmur as from the Lucy Stone League of Maiden Namers. And from still another quarter, that of the Messieurs and Mesdames Fannie Hursts, Heywood Ruth Hale-Brouns, and the Hendrik Goodrich Van Loons, comes a whisper that bodes new revolt. Unless our ears deceive us, they will have none of it; they will cry havoc at the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and let loose something or other.

Not alone for presumption will the champions of a New Day assail the Bureau, in hanging its definition on "supports and maintains." If there is any body and substance to the principles of emancipated marriage, it has its foundation in the division of support and maintenance. But that will not comprise the summit of offense in the Bureau's definition. It rests on the Revenue's choice of pronouns. There is the great flaw in the Bureau's accomplishment. For what does it say?

It says "Him." "He" is the head of the family. The male—he is it. There is no getting around it.

So it will be in vain that the Revenue's take refuge in the English language's grave lack of a pronoun of common gender to describe the head of the family. Him is him—and nothing more. However legal the definition may be, it will have to be superlegal, if the Bureau is to get away with it. For what the modernists want is not law, but justice, and how can there be justice, if it comport not with their philosophy?

HOW RUSSIA IS GOVERNED

NOMINALLY the present Russian government is organized something like a United States of Russia, consisting of a number of what are called allied republics that correspond somewhat to our states, General William Mitchell, U. S. A., who recently visited Russia, explains in an article in Liberty.

"These republics are supposed to be entirely autonomous, and retain their individual languages," explains the author.

"They elect representatives to a Congress which sits in the Grand Opera House in Moscow every year for about a week."

SYNOPSIS

Mickey Grogan, orphaned habitude of The Dump, is saved from the ire of the truant officer by Jeffrey Shore, a strange young man who apparently has seen better days but is now nearly blind. To repay him, Mickey leads Jeffrey to the home of Winifred Davidson, his benefactor, and asks her to provide them lodging for the night. Unsuspecting as to what Mickey's intentions had been, Jeffrey is embarrassed by the proposal but accepts Winifred's offer of a bed in the attic. While they are there Al Nevers, a pugilistic employed at the same factory as Winifred, calls and attempts to force his attentions on her but is repulsed. Winifred then offers to provide food but they decline her kindness and Mickey sets out for the corner delicatessen and, after ordering sandwiches, tells the proprietor to "charge it to me."

Suddenly, the tall angular proprietor jumped out from behind the counter, and, without wasting a motion, grabbed Mickey off the floor by the back of his coat. "So," said Mr. Freyerschutz dumping Mickey callously into the street. "So," said Mr. Freyerschutz, dusting off his hands and disappearing within.

"Aw, so's your old man, you big stiff," Mickey called after him. Next, the boy attempted to beg a nickel from a passerby, but the policeman on the beat, who knew Mickey well and always suspected him, came along, and the lad faded from sight as quickly as possible. He ducked down an alley and, safe there for a moment, paused in helpless dismay. What was he to do? Jeff must have something to eat—and his own stomach was like and squared his shoulders. "I'll get somethin' to eat some way," he promised himself. And even as he spoke, a door opposite him opened, spreading a fan of light across the small, staunch figure.

Through the doorway came a big German noted for his ill temper. In his arms he carried a heap of stale rolls which he was about to throw in the garbage can when he spied Mickey. "Well, what is it?" he bellowed. "Maybe you want some food to steal, you little loafer you, you good-for-nothings. Clear out—git a mooch on py yourself!"

"Who's goin' to make me?" jeered Mickey, but his tone was only half-hearted. He hadn't much fight left in him, but he thought that it would be a good idea to tell the baker a thing or two. For no man was going to call Mickey a "good-for-nothings" and get away with it.

"Aw, ye're not in but a big fat head!" Mickey called to the baker. "If brains was ham you'd be smarter den the guy who writes the weather reports."

This taunt so enraged the baker that, for want of a better weapon, he threw a hard, stale roll straight at Mickey.

Even as Mickey dodged, inspiration flashed upon him. "Ya-ah!" he sang out in the most irritating cat-call he could summon to his assistance. "Ya big fat-head, ya couldn't hit the side of a barn!" Whereupon the baker threw another roll and yet another. Mickey ducked expertly but kept his eye on the rolls. The more of them he could get the better for himself and Jeff. He groped about for a missile to hurl back, just to encourage the barrage. His hand found an object, but when he saw that it was one of the precious rolls, he carefully wise sending out the usual desperate appeal for help.

"Ya couldn't hit the side of a barn!"

While Mickey was considering what he had better do, Winnie, in the attic, was earnestly asking the shabby young man, "What are you planning to do now?"

He shook his head. "I don't know. Without my eyes I can't continue my work. I was an architect, you see."

"Haven't you any people—friends or relatives?"

"I wouldn't go to my friends, and as for relatives—" he smiled wistfully. "I'm an orphan like Mickey."

"Perhaps," he said. "But an architect without eyes is like a pianist without fingers. The pianist might be able to tell others how to play, but he'd die of heart-break because he couldn't play the melody with his own fingers."

"Please—please don't talk that way," Winifred beseeched him laying her hand on his sleeve. "You mustn't take things so badly. I've always felt that the most desperate and discouraging situation has a way of righting itself. Promise me you'll try to cheer up a bit." She tightened her hold on his arm.

He patted her hand. "I will promise if it will make you happier," he said softly.

"Thanks—Jeff. I'm going downstairs now. Can I bring you up something to eat?"

"Oh, thank you, no. I'm not a bit hungry—really, I'm not." And then he damned himself for a fool. That pride! It would be the ruin of him! But had she not done much for him already? He watched her disappear, and she seemed to take the silver rays of the moonlight with her.

"Good-night," she called.

"Good-night," he answered. And then more softly, "God bless you."

Meanwhile, in the alleyway, Mickey was peering wistfully through the back window of the same delicatessen store where he had failed to establish credit. He could see one of the cooks eating his supper, and as the man shoveled in great chunks of food, Mickey began to feel sick. Tightening the rope that held up his trousers, he turned miserably away.

"Crooked says," he muttered to himself, "that when you're doin' somethin' right in this world that Gawd 'll help you—"

He cracked his shin against a forgotten can in the alley way and let out a yelp of pain. At that moment, it did not look like God was inclined to help anyone. But in spite of appearances, Mickey straightened up laid it down again and grabbed, instead, the tin can he had stumbled over a moment before.

As he lunged the can, the baker, suddenly wearied by his display of temper, retreated back into the bakery, and Mickey calmly gathered up the rolls, stuffing them into his various coat pockets until he bulged all over like a figure made of dough. "Crooked says, God helps those as helps themselves," chuckled Mickey, "an' I'm beginnin' to think that Crooked is right more times 'n he is wrong. Crooked says, if a man hits you, turn him the other cheek. 'Ats a darn good idea. An' what I say is, if Crooked should ever run fer President, I'd vote fer him as many times as I could."

On the way back to Winifred's attic, Mickey saw a bottle of milk set on the ledge of a lower window, and so that night he slept cool. Climbing along the porch railing, not without difficulty because of his burden—Mickey appropriated the bottle so richly white inside with milk. "Crooked says, Search an' ye will find," murmured Mickey. For a moment, Mickey hesitated. In this particular instance, Crooked might be wrong. Perhaps Crooked would have ordered him to put the bottle of milk back on the window-sill. But was Crooked ever so hungry?

"Oh well," said Mickey, carrying the milk off with him, "I'll bring the bottle back."

The rise of Alexander Cabel, owner of the factory in which Winifred was employed, had been an extraordinarily rapid one, even in a country where men become millionaires over night. Cabel had begun, five years before as a clerk in a grocery store, and now, at thirty, he was owner of the National Food Products Company, the largest firm of its kind in the world.

Young Cabel, himself, was unassuming and easy to address; he gave himself no airs and anyone of his employees might come to him personally with a grievance. In this respect young Cabel was a magnate of the newer, younger school; and he believed in making those who worked for him his partners in the huge business. In appearance, Cabel was slim and athletic, with forward, frank manners and shrewd gray eyes. His energy was amazing to those who were frequently in his presence. He never seemed to tire, and was never at a loss to suggest something that might concern the welfare of his company. True, there were times when he was a bit ill-tempered and out-of-sorts; but they were exceedingly rare interludes in his busy career. And if others suffered any inconvenience because of these bad-tempered out-breaks, he was quick to notice it and was profuse in his apologies.

palling toll of dead, injured and destruction of property.

Six more were killed and hundreds injured in a gale that preceded the Thames flood, blowing at from 60 to 90 miles an hour across the country, tearing up trees, disrupting railroad and wire communication and working general havoc.

Police searched through London and its suburbs today for further victims of the Thames overflow, and it was feared the casualty list would mount. The known deaths rose to 13 when two girls were found in Hammersmith, trapped and drowned while asleep in their homes.

River walls went down under the weight of the water and warehouses along the river banks, which held rich merchandise were flooded and their contents ruined.

The lower sections of the Tate Gallery, one of the world's storehouses of art, were flooded and irreparable damage done. Fifteen thousand Turner sketches in about 100 portfolios, valued at thousands of pounds sterling intrinsically but from the artistic viewpoint priceless and irreplaceable, were destroyed. Many pictures of lesser value were destroyed.

It was feared high tide this afternoon would bring a repetition of the flood but experts announced the danger was over. The water reached its crest and began to recede without doing further appreciable damage.

Thousands had gathered along the Thames embankment and lined the bridges to watch the spectacle of the tide coming up the river.

At Heybridge, Essex, a tidal wave swept into the basin, inundating the town under three to six feet of water. Nearly 300 houses were flooded.

THREE COMMITTED TO STATE SCHOOL.

Fourth Permitted to Remain Home
According to Child Welfare
Board Report

MONTH WAS BUSY ONE

Contribution of Rugs and Bedding
for Needy Family
Asked

Three Crow Wing county children were taken to the State Public School and in a fourth commitment to that institution the child was permitted to remain in the home in which he now is, during the month of December, according to the report of the Child Welfare Board. Two children committed there some time ago were returned to the county as feeble minded. A third in the same family will probably be returned later.

Contributions of rugs and bedding are being asked for a needy family through the board. Those desiring to make any charitable donation of this kind are requested to do so to the office of Miss Rebecca Cassell, secretary in the court house.

The report states that the month has been a very full and very interesting one. In conjunction with the city and county nurses and with the Welfare Committee of the Musical club, plans for Christmas cheer were made for several families.

The report follows:

DEMURRERS ARGUED

Those Filed by P. J. Long Claimed
Federal Courts Had Sole
Jurisdiction in Case

Judge Bert Fesler of the district court, sitting at Duluth, on Friday morning heard the demurrers to certain indictments against P. J. Long, argued by his attorney, F. E. Murphy of the Crosby law firm of Murphy and Cook. Arguments lasted two hours.

The state was represented by Assistant Attorney General Chester Wilson and County Attorney Walter F. Wieland. The gist of the argument on the part of Long's attorneys is whether the offense charged is a violation of federal law to be prosecuted in federal court to the exclusion of any prosecution in state courts.

Judge Fesler took the matter under advisement.

enjoyable outdoor vacations in their experience.

The boys who attended camp follow: Dale Sanders, William Johnstone, James Richards, Guy Hawkins, Russell Nelson, Brainerd; James Van Evera, Frederick Bennett, Kenneth Burns, Baxter Smith, Crosby; Gordon Keyes, Deerwood; Clarence Baaken, deputy scout commissioner of Staples; and B. Perry Newton, scout executive.

The boys did their own cooking while in camp, having such delicacies as peach pie, muffins, Johnny cake, baking powder biscuits, along with staple meat and potatoes.

The recreation consisted of tobogganing on a newly constructed slide, the production of a thrilling movie entitled "The Sheriff's Daughter" with the following cast: Dale Sanders, sheriff; Baxter Smith, sheriff's daughter; Guy Hawkins, hero in love with the sheriff's daughter; William Johnstone and James Richards, bootleggers; the remainder of the camp, the sheriff's posse.

B. Perry Newton was director and cameraman assisted by camp as a whole.

The synopsis of the play follows:

The sheriff's daughter had gone for a ski hike. The hero calls on the sheriff. When the daughter does not return a posse is organized and starts out tracking the sheriff's daughter. The tracks lead to a bootleggers' dugout which she had come across when lost and cold. The girl was being held for ransom by the bootleggers and in the furious battle between the bootleggers and the posse, the chief bootlegger escapes through the woods carrying the sheriff's daughter. He throws her on the toboggan jumps on and shoots down the icy hill in an attempt to frustrate the chase. The hero jumps on a small toboggan and there is a mad race down the hill with the girl's life at stake. The bootlegger is captured after a real honest to goodness rough and tumble fight and taken to jail. The hero climaxes the scene by winning the girl and taking her after the wedding ceremony to his hunting cabin amid the pines of Camp Clearwater. The picture will be shown at the different troop meetings within the next few weeks.

2 MISSIONARIES ARE TO PREACH

Rev. Arthur, Field Secretary, Baptist
State Convention,
Preaches in Morning

AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Charles Selander, Missionary of Assam, to Preach
in Evening

Rev. Arthur Hoag, Field Secretary for the Minnesota Baptist State Convention, will preach in the First Baptist church on Sunday morning. He is well known through the state for the constructive work which he did at Albert Lea where he was the pastor of the First Baptist church for twelve years. His work along the line of missions has been especially marked, the church which he served leading all of the churches in the state outside of the Twin Cities in missionary giving. He will preach on the subject "The Making of a Missionary."

Rev. Charles Selander a missionary under the Foreign Mission Board of the Northern Baptist Convention working in Assam, will preach in the evening. In his work in this field he has had to work as physician, teacher, pastor, and evangelist so great are the demands upon him. The school which he heads gives the only opportunity throughout a large territory for education for the children. Already many native pastors have gone out to labor in various places through the training received under his instruction. He is now at home on furlough but will shortly return to Assam.

STUDENTS RETURN TO CLASSES MONDAY

Estimate of Number of School Children to Resume Studies
Placed at 5,000

MANY TEACHERS RETURN

Schools Are House Cleaned and Everything Spic and Span for General Opening

Brainerd and rural schools will reopen after the Christmas vacation on Monday morning with close to five thousand students throughout the county renewing their studies. The majority of the schools throughout the county have been given the customary house cleaning during the vacation to prepare them for the second semester. Many of the schools have undergone repairs including varnishing of floors, and repainting work.

Mrs. Irma Camp Hartley, superintendent of county schools announced today that about 1952 students in the rural school would continue their studies Monday while city school officials stated that approximately 2,000 students would be back at their desks again on Monday.

Many of the teachers who spent the vacation out of the city returned today but the majority were expected back tomorrow. There will be no changes in the personnel at this time.

Vergas Grooms Newlyweds

Last Saturday evening about one hundred and twenty-five citizens, young and old, gathered at the Fankhanel hall, where four large tables were laid, upon which was placed the most delicious foods in the city. A mock wedding was given by local people, after which the local band played during the partaking of this delicious meal.

The floor was cleared and music furnished by a number of talented citizens, to a dance which was well attended and which lasted until the passing of the "old year."

Thus was Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Warner greeted by the community, with whom we join in wishing them much success and joy in Vergas.—The Vergas Graphic.

PENNEY OUTLOOK FOR 1928 GOOD

Competition Should Bring Increase in Efficiency J. C. Penney Co.
President Asserts

COMMODITY PRICES VARY

Percentage of Gross Profit Put on Basis of Fairness to Customers and Merchant

A statement by Earl C. Sams, president of the J. C. Penney Co., indicates:

"General business during 1928 should continue along about the same lines that it followed during the year just passed. It will be a good year for such business enterprises as are properly adjusted to the general economic conditions of today.

"General commodity prices will undoubtedly be subject to the usual short swings up or down depending upon local conditions and upon the changing phases of industrial and agricultural activities governing income and production.

"Any general movement in commodity prices should be downward but there is no reason at the present time to believe that there will be any marked lowering of prices.

"The usual discussions which characterize any presidential election year will prevail but the economic structure of the country is on such a well defined basis of economy and progression that it is unlikely that political differences bearing on economic activities will have any pronounced effect on general business. Any differences which may exist in relation to the present economic standards, on the part of political parties are apparently too slight to be disturbing in their import.

"Competition in all lines is increasing and the effects of this competition will be keenly felt during the present year. The margin of profit which may be anticipated by the distributor of general merchandise is growing smaller and greater efficiency is being shown in distribution methods.

"In the J. C. Penney Co. we have been studying the elements of working efficiency in each of the retail store units and have been organizing all phases of our general distribution methods down to a point which maintains the highest standards of economy in handling from the time the merchandise is completed by the manufacturer until it is finally placed in the hands of the retail buyer.

"This applies to shipments made by rail or by water, to pricing of our merchandise and to organization of individual effort in the J. C. Penney Co. stores.

"The percentage set aside for gross profit is, I believe, on a basis which is eminently fair to retail customers, to competing merchants and to the J. C. Penney Co. It is a low percentage and yet the operations of the individual J. C. Penney Co. stores has shown that it is a percentage which will give the company a fair return while affording the buyer a high value.

It is on such a basis as this that general business will have to organize itself this year if it is to survive in the competitive conditions which are certain to prevail."

CONCERT RECITAL

Swedish Nightingales and Prof. Paul
Hultman at Swedish
Baptist Church

The Swedish Nightingales with Professor Paul Hultman, as pianist, will appear in a concert recital at the Swedish Baptist church Saturday, January 14, at 8:30 o'clock.

Professor Hultman, the gifted pianist, appeared here recently in a recital with his father Rev. J. A. Hultman and is therefore well known to the musical patrons of the city and needs no further introduction.

The Swedish Nightingales have just completed a tour of Europe and have been enthusiastically received and given the highest praise. Their voices have the harmonious tones which blend with bell like clearness and proves them artists of the highest degree.

With a number of important issues for the welfare of the Brainerd Outdoor Sports club to be discussed all members of the local organization are requested to be present at a meeting to be held Monday evening, January 9, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 7:30 o'clock.

The three most important matters coming before the meeting are: winter carnival, plans for the outdoor rink behind the court house and hockey, skiing, tobogganing.

Members of the entertainment committee of the association have formed tentative plans for the holding of a large carnival. These will present reports on the movement already started.

It is also planned to discuss hockey, skiing and tobogganing evenings to interest the members this winter.

WANDREI, WHALEY PLEAD NOT GUILTY

CONFESSED "THRILL ROBBERS"
HELD TO DISTRICT COURT,
RETURNED TO JAIL

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Howard Wandrei and Wendell Whaley, University of Minnesota students, and confessed "thrill robbers," today entered pleas of not guilty to charges of burglary when arraigned in police court. They were held to the district court, and returned to jail.

Two other youths, arrested with the students, made statements in juvenile court in which they blame a 21-year-old woman for their crimes. They said, according to police, that the woman demanded money, and told them to obtain it by snatching purses. They also stole an automobile to take her to St. Cloud, but they failed to drive it out of St. Paul, police say they admitted. The case against them was continued while police continued to search for the woman in the case, who was last known to be at Fargo.

THREE COMMITTED TO STATE SCHOOL

Fourth Permitted to Remain Home
According to Child Welfare
Board Report

MONTH WAS BUSY ONE

Contribution of Rugs and Bedding
for Needy Family
Asked

Three Crow Wing county children were taken to the State Public School and in a fourth commitment to that institution the child was permitted to remain in the home in which he now is, during the month of December, according to the report of the Child Welfare Board. Two children committed there some time ago were returned to the county as feeble minded. A third in the same family will probably be returned later.

Contributions of rugs and bedding are being asked for a needy family through the board. Those desiring to make any charitable donation of this kind are requested to do so to the office of Miss Rebecca Cassell, secretary in the court house.

The report states that the month has been a very full and very interesting one. In conjunction with the city and county nurses and with the Welfare Committee of the Musical club, plans for Christmas cheer were made for several families.

The report follows:

DEMURRERS ARGUED

Those Filed by P. J. Long Claimed
Federal Courts Had Sole
Jurisdiction in Case

Judge Bert Fesler of the district court, sitting at Duluth, on Friday morning heard the demurrers to certain indictments against P. J. Long, argued by his attorney, F. E. Murphy of the Crosby law firm of Murphy and Cook. Arguments lasted two hours.

The state was represented by Assistant Attorney General Chester Wilson and County Attorney Walter F. Wieland. The gist of the argument on the part of Long's attorneys is whether the offense charged is a violation of federal law to be prosecuted in federal court to the exclusion of any prosecution in state courts.

Judge Fesler took the matter under advisement.

AT WINTER CAMP

Twelve Return Yesterday From Five Day Vacation at Clearwater

Twelve boys returned from five delightful days in camp at Clearwater lake yesterday filled with enthusiasm over the success of the winter camp venture.

Despite a varied change in the temperature when the mercury dropped to 34 degrees below zero last Monday to 42 degrees above zero yesterday the boys expressed themselves as having one of the most enjoyable outdoor vacations in their experience.

The boys who attended camp follow: Dale Sanders, William Johnstone, James Richards, Guy Hawkins, Russell Nelson, Brainerd; James Van Evera, Frederick Bennett, Kenneth Burns, Baxter Smith, Crosby; Gordon Keyes, Deerwood; Clarence Baaken, deputy scout commissioner of Staples; and B. Perry Newton, scout executive.

The boys did their own cooking while in camp, having such delicacies as peach pie, muffins, Johnny cake, baking powder biscuits, along with staple meat and potatoes.

The recreation consisted of tobogganing on a newly constructed slide, the production of a thrilling movie entitled "The Sheriff's Daughter" with the following cast: Dale Sanders, sheriff; Baxter Smith, sheriff's daughter; Guy Hawkins, hero in love with the sheriff's daughter; William Johnstone and James Richards, bootleggers; the remainder of the camp, the sheriff's posse.

B. Perry Newton was director and cameraman assisted by camp as a whole.

The synopsis of the play follows:

The sheriff's daughter had gone for a ski hike. The hero calls on the sheriff. When the daughter does not return a posse is organized and starts out tracking the sheriff's daughter. The tracks lead to a bootleggers' dugout which she had come across when lost and cold. The girl was being held for ransom by the bootleggers and in the furious battle between the bootleggers and the posse, the chief bootlegger escapes through the woods carrying the sheriff's daughter. He throws her on the toboggan jumps on and shoots down the icy hill in an attempt to frustrate the chase. The hero jumps on a small toboggan and there is a mad race down the hill with the girl's life at stake. The bootlegger is captured after a real honest to goodness rough and tumble fight and taken to jail. The hero climaxes the scene by winning the girl and taking her after the wedding ceremony to his hunting cabin amid the pines of Camp Clearwater. The picture will be shown at the different troop meetings within the next few weeks.

2 MISSIONARIES ARE TO PREACH

Rev. Arthur, Field Secretary, Baptist State Convention,
Preaches in Morning

AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Charles Selander, Missionary of Assam, to Preach in Evening

Rev. Arthur Hoag, Field Secretary for the Minnesota Baptist State Convention, will preach in the First Baptist church on Sunday morning. He is well known through the state for the constructive work which he did at Albert Lea where he was the pastor of the First Baptist church for twelve years. His work along the line of missions has been especially marked, the church which he served leading all of the churches in the state outside of the Twin Cities in missionary giving. He will preach on the subject "The Making of a Missionary."

Rev. Charles Selander a missionary under the Foreign Mission Board of the Northern Baptist Convention working in Assam, will preach in the evening. In his work in this field he has had to work as physician, teacher, pastor, and evangelist so great are the demands upon him. The school which he heads gives the only opportunity throughout a large territory for education for the children. Already many native pastors have gone out to labor in various places through the training received under his instruction. He is now at home on furlough but will shortly return to Assam.

STUDENTS RETURN TO CLASSES MONDAY

Estimate of Number of School Children to Resume Studies
Placed at 5,000

MANY TEACHERS RETURN

Schools Are House Cleaned and Everything Spic and Span for General Opening

Brainerd and rural schools will reopen after the Christmas vacation on Monday morning with close to five thousand students throughout the county renewing their studies.

The majority of the schools throughout the county have been given the customary house cleaning during the vacation to prepare them for the second semester. Many of the schools have undergone repairs including varnishing of floors, and repainting work.

Mrs. Irma Camp Hartley, superintendent of county schools announced today that about 1952 students in the rural school would continue their studies Monday while city school officials stated that approximately 2,000 students would be back at their desks again on Monday.

Many of the teachers who spent the vacation out of the city returned today but the majority were expected back tomorrow. There will be no changes in the personnel at this time.

Vergas Greets Newlyweds

Last Saturday evening about one hundred and twenty-five citizens, young and old, gathered at the Fankhanel hall, where four large tables were laid, upon which was placed the most delicious foods in the city. A mock wedding was given by local people, after which the local band played during the partaking of this delicious meal.

The floor was cleared and music furnished by a number of talented citizens, to a dance which was well attended and which lasted until the passing of the "old year."

Thus was Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Warner greeted by the community, with whom we join in wishing them much success and joy in Vergas.—The Vergas Graphic.

PENNEY OUTLOOK FOR 1928 GOOD

Competition Should Bring Increase in Efficiency J. C. Penney Co. President Asserts

COMMODITY PRICES VARY

Percentage of Gross Profit Put on Basis of Fairness to Customers and Merchant

A statement by Earl C. Sams, president of the J. C. Penney Co., indicates:

"General business during 1928 should continue along about the same lines that it followed during the year just passed. It will be a good year for such business enterprises as are properly adjusted to the general economic conditions of today.

"General commodity prices will undoubtedly be subject to the usual short swings up or down depending upon local conditions and upon the changing phases of industrial and agricultural activities governing income and production.

"Any general movement in commodity prices should be downward but there is no reason at the present time to believe that there will be any marked lowering of prices.

"The usual discussions which characterize any presidential election year will prevail but the economic structure of the country is on such a well defined basis of economy and progression that it is unlikely that political differences bearing on economic activities will have any pronounced effect on general business. Any differences which may exist in relation to the present economic standards on the part of political parties are apparently too slight to be disturbing in their import.

"Competition in all lines is increasing and the effects of this competition will be keenly felt during the present year. The margin of profit which may be anticipated by the distributor of general merchandise is growing smaller and greater efficiency is being shown in distribution methods.

"In the J. C. Penney Co. we have been studying the elements of working efficiency in each of the retail store units and have been organizing all phases of our general distribution methods down to a point which maintains the highest standards of economy in handling from the time the merchandise is completed by the manufacturer until it is finally placed in the hands of the retail buyer.

"This applies to shipments made by rail or by water, to pricing of our merchandise and to organization of individual effort in the J. C. Penney Co. stores.

"The percentage set aside for gross profit is, I believe, on a basis which is eminently fair to retail customers, to competing merchants and to the J. C. Penney Co. It is a low percentage and yet the operations of the individual J. C. Penney Co. stores has shown that it is a percentage which will give the company a fair return while affording the buyer a high value.

It is on such a basis as this that general business will have to organize itself this year if it is to survive in the competitive conditions which are certain to prevail."

CONCERT RECITAL

Swedish Nightingales and Prof. Paul Hultman at Swedish Baptist Church

The Swedish Nightingales with Professor Paul Hultman, as pianist, will appear in a concert recital at the Swedish Baptist church Saturday, January 14, at 8:30 o'clock.

Professor Hultman, the gifted pianist, appeared here recently in a recital with his father Rev. J. A. Hultman and is therefore well known to the musical patrons of the city and needs no further introduction.

The Swedish Nightingales have just completed a tour of Europe and have been enthusiastically received and given the highest praise. Their voices have the harmonious tones which blend with bell like clearness and proves them artists of the highest degree.

SPORTS CLUB TO DISCUSS ISSUES

Several Important Matters to Come up at General Meeting Monday Evening

PLAN WINTER CARNIVAL

Tentative Plans for Rink, Hockey, Skiing and Tobogganing Attractions Made

With a number of important issues for the welfare of the Brainerd Outdoor Sports club to be discussed all members of the local organization are requested to be present at a meeting to be held Monday evening, January 9, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 7:30 o'clock.

The three most important matters coming before the meeting are: winter carnival, plans for the outdoor rink behind the court house and hockey, skiing, tobogganing.

Members of the entertainment committee of the association have formed tentative plans for the holding of a large carnival. These will present reports on the movement already started.

It is also planned to discuss hockey, skiing and tobogganing evenings to interest the members this winter.

WANDREI, WHALEY PLEAD NOT GUILTY

CONFESED "THRILL ROBBERS"
HELD TO DISTRICT COURT,
RETURNED TO JAIL

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—(UP)—Howard Wandrei and Wendell Whaley, University of Minnesota students, and confessed "thrill robbers," today entered pleas of not guilty to charges of burglary when arraigned in police court. They were held to the district court, and returned to jail.

Two other youths, arrested with the students, made statements in juvenile court in which they blame a 21-year-old woman for their crimes. They said, according to police, that the woman demanded money, and told them to obtain it by snatching purses. They also stole an automobile to take her to St. Cloud, but they failed to drive it out of St. Paul, police say they admitted. The case against them was continued while police continued to search for the woman in the case, who was last known to be at Fargo.

BRAINERD HIGH BEAT ST. CLOUD 29 TO 8

HOLD FAST TECH HIGH SCORELESS IN SECOND HALF

WISE BREAKS UP PASSES AND
RUSHES WHILE TEAMMATES
WORK IN UNISON

WELLIVER STARTS A SCORING
RAMPAGE IN 2ND HALF
WITH 3 BASKETS

Opening their bagful of tricks and taking out a number per instructions of Coach Warren Kasch, the Brainerd high school basketball team outclassed the snappy St. Cloud Tech High team last night on the St. Cloud Armory floor and emerged victors in one of the fastest games witnessed by the St. Cloud fans in three years. The score board at the close of the game showed the count: Brainerd, 29; St. Cloud, 8.

St. Cloud opened up with a furious rush and before the smoke cleared in those early minutes two baskets had been sunk against Brainerd. Wise, the dependable, came through immediately with two beautiful baskets to tie up the score and St. Cloud followed with another basket. And Wise again came through with another basket. The half ended 9 to 7 for Brainerd.

Welliver started the scoring bee for Brainerd in the second half when he dribbled through the rangy St. Cloud team on a solo rush and sank three baskets in quick succession. The game in the second half was decidedly one-sided with Brainerd holding the ball the majority of the time and working their way through the entire team with fine combination work to sink baskets.

St. Cloud fans forgot to cheer on their home team to victory when they saw how the game was going and watched the local team with admiration as they executed their signals in a perfectly trained manner. LaCourse was given his chance last night and he came through with three baskets in the second half. Fuller and Welliver were strong on the defense, with Wise playing a star game responsible for the breaking up of many of St. Cloud's passes and rushes.

Guin showed better offensive work than he has all season. In last night's play he became a threat man on the St. Cloud cage.

Swanson and Fuller aided in the scoring and defensive work.

Several strenuous practices are expected to put the boys in the necessary shape to meet the strong contenders for the conference championship, Crosby-Ironton high school, on the local floor on Friday, January 13. The game will undoubtedly be a fight from start to finish. Both teams will be at full strength.

The Brainerd team that defeated St. Cloud follows: Swanson, Wise, forwards; Guin, center; Welliver, Fuller, guards; W. Hautala, Barnes, LaCourse, subs.

Referee—Lynch, St. Cloud.

LOU GEHRIG SIGNS UP FOR THREE YEARS

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Lou Gehrig, the other half of the Yankees' home run twins, has signed a three-year contract. The first baseman's salary was not made known but the guessers suggested that $25,000 a year would not be far wrong. In 1927, when Gehrig bagged 47 homers as against Babe Ruth's record 60, the young slugger received only $8,000 aside from the world series money.

MERICKEL, WADENA STAR, GETS
THROUGH IN LAST THREE
MINUTES TO CINCH GAME

FITZHARRIS, NUTTING AND HESS
TEAM UP WELL AS LOCALS'
SCORING TRIO

The Brainerd Y. M. C. A. cage squad lost to Deer Creek last evening at the latter's diminutive floor by the count of 44 to 39.

Merickel, former University of Minnesota player, and Martin of Wadena, brought to Deer Creek for the game against Brainerd, contributed to the defeat of the locals. Merickel was high scorer with 12 baskets to his credit.

Fitzharris, Nutting and Hess teamed up in fine fashion in a scoring combination for Brainerd while Welch, running guard, played a splendid floor game. He scored two baskets. Fitzsimmons also played a good defensive game.

"This is the first time the squad has played together. The team play will be perfected in proper style to meet the Minneapolis Y. M. C. A. here January 16," said Marvin Nutting, captain of the team.

A return game will be played with Deer Creek here later in the season. With the score tied 39-39, with three minutes to go, Merickel broke through with three baskets to sew up the game.

SPORTSMATTER

BY
FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Even at this late date there remains a modicum of suspicion among the fraternal fraternity that Jack Sharkey of Boston will sustain an injury in training which will prevent his meeting Tom Heeney of New Zealand next Friday night.

Jack Delaney, former light heavyweight champion, who recently was sold for $50,000, is working out daily, prepared to serve as substitute for the big Lithuanian against the rugged New Zealander.

Such suspicion of Sharkey's durability—or are his good intentions questioned?—is unjustified. The Bostonian has always given every evidence of great gameness, and certainly there is no reason for him to fear a meeting with Tom Heeney.

The youngster who rushed in and exploded the myth of Harry Wills, whom even Dempsey feared to meet is not side-stepping a match with a second-rate heavyweight like the New Zealander.

It was Sharkey, moreover, who took on big George Godfrey, the present "black menace," when the dusky Lieperville Leopard was being ignored by all cautious heavyweights.

It was Sharkey who stood up to Dempsey himself until that utterly stupid affair of the foul in the seventh round.

No, if there is any cancellation of the Sharkey-Heeney match, one must look elsewhere for the cause. It may be that something will occur to prevent Sharkey from fighting, but if such is the case, the Lithuanian will not be the only one responsible.

Some of the "wise boys" still believe that Sharkey will be saved for an outdoor bout, and not risked against the rugged Heeney. This talk has been going on for more than a month, ever since the first arranged meeting between the pair had to be postponed. There is just this to be said: If such is the case, it will be those who are arranging the hypothetical outdoor bout who will be responsible, not Sharkey.

The Bostonian probably will go through with the bout next week, and probably will defeat Heeney easily.

Tom is not in Jack's class, despite a deal of improvement displayed by the New Zealander since coming to this country.

The Sharkey who was ready for Dempsey last June should be able to stop an awkward fighter like Heeney before the end of 15 rounds. The Antipodean is strong and willing, and undoubtedly will subject Sharkey to some dangerous body punishment, if he can penetrate Jack's guard.

This is the only dangerous part of the affair: will the body blows all land cleanly, and will Sharkey be sure they are landing cleanly and not get himself and once more start a boxing scandal by yelling "Foul."

PUTS HIM DOWN FOR TWO COUNTS OF NINE EACH

SUPERIOR BOXING AND CONDI-
TION OF LOUGHRAN STAVE
OFF DEFEAT

IN FIRST FEW ROUNDS LOMSKI
LOOKED LIKE NEW CHAMPION

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Tommy Loughran's ring policy of taking on all comers for the light heavyweight championship came near ending disastrously in Madison Square Garden last night when Leo Lomski, a blond terror from the State of Washington, floored the champion twice in the first round.

Loughran came up out of the resin dust after two counts of nine each and fought in a daze for the first few rounds, but his superior boxing skill and perfectly conditioned fighting body staved off impending defeat and he carried on to win the toughest fight of his career.

The ripping, tearing Lomski was out-boxed and made to look bad in the latter rounds of the 15-round bout, but in the first round and several rounds thereafter he looked like the new 175 pound champion.

Rushing out of his corner like a tiger-man, Lomski knocked Loughran a somersault half way across the ring with a crashing right flush to the jaw in less than a minute of fighting in the opening round.

Loughran came too quickly and was on his knee at six, but did not arise until the count reached nine.

Lomski tore in after the champion, and less than a minute later knocked him sprawling with another terrific right to the jaw which left Loughran weak and bewildered. Loughran got up slowly at nine and stayed away from Lomski for the rest of the round.

Loughran said in his dressing room after the fight that he didn't remember being knocked down a second time.

"The second right to my jaw must have knocked me senseless, for I do not remember being on the floor more than once," he said. "From the first round until the fifth I fought in a daze. Lomski is a good, game fighter and my how he can sock."

Until he was floored twice by Lomski, Loughran had been knocked down only two other times in his career. Gene Tunney knocked him down in the first 30 seconds of the first round of a no-decision bout at Philadelphia in 1922 and Pal Reid of Boston knocked him down for a nine count in the third round of a bout at Newark four years ago. In the latter bout Loughran got up to win the decision just as he did against Lomski.

"It was a close fight any way you take it," he said. "I want a return bout as soon as I can get it and next time I'll lick him."

Although he was badly outclassed toward the end of the bout, Lomski never once relinquished the offensive. He kept everlastingly after Loughran, swinging wildly and ineffectively, but always moving in the direction of his target.

And Tommy had to call upon every trick known to ring science to outpoint this slam-bang, rough and ready westerner.

A crowd of 15,000 paid $78,000 to see the bout.

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Tommy Loughran will forget the ring for a while now that he has disposed of all of the outstanding challengers for the light heavyweight title. He leaves for a few months vacation in South America about January 15.

"I've done enough fighting now and I don't want to think about the ring for a few months," he said. "When another fellow comes along I'll be ready and willing to give him a bout."

Loughran is undecided about entering the heavyweight division and trying to get a bout with Gene Tunney.

BRAINERD HIGH BEAT ST. CLOUD 29 TO 8

HOLD FAST TECH HIGH SCORELESS IN SECOND HALF

WISE BREAKS UP PASSES AND
RUSHES WHILE TEAMMATES
WORK IN UNISON

WELLIVER STARTS A SCORING
RAMPAGE IN 2ND HALF
WITH 3 BASKETS

Opening their bagful of tricks and taking out a number per instructions of Coach Warren Kasch, the Brainerd high school basketball team out-classed the snappy St. Cloud Tech-High team last night on the St. Cloud Armory floor and emerged victors in one of the fastest games witnessed by the St. Cloud fans in three years. The score board at the close of the game showed the count: Brainerd, 29; St. Cloud, 8.

St. Cloud opened up with a furious rush and before the smoke cleared in those early minutes two baskets had been sunk against Brainerd. Wise, the dependable, came through immediately with two beautiful baskets to tie up the score and St. Cloud followed with another basket. And Wise again came through with another basket. The half ended 9 to 7 for Brainerd.

Welliver started the scoring bee for Brainerd in the second half when he dribbled through the rangy St. Cloud team on a solo rush and sank three baskets in quick succession. The game in the second half was decidedly one-sided with Brainerd holding the ball the majority of the time and working their way through the entire team with fine combination work to sink baskets.

St. Cloud fans forgot to cheer on their home team to victory when they saw how the game was going and watched the local team with admiration as they executed their signals in a perfectly trained manner. LaCourse was given his chance last night and he came through with three baskets in the second half. Fuller and Welliver were strong on the defense, with Wise playing a star game responsible for the breaking up of many of St. Cloud's passes and rushes.

Guin showed better offensive work than he has all season. In last night's play he became a threat man on the St. Cloud cage.

Swanson and Fuller aided in the scoring and defensive work. Several strenuous practices are expected to put the boys in the necessary shape to meet the strong contenders for the conference championship, Crosby-Branton high school, on the local floor on Friday, January 13. The game will undoubtedly be a fight from start to finish. Both teams will be at full strength.

The Brainerd team that defeated St. Cloud follows: Swanson, Wise, forwards; Guin, center; Welliver, Fuller, guards; W. Hautala, Barnes, LaCourse, subs.

Referee—Lynch, St. Cloud.

Illinois Awarded 28 Varsity Football Letters This Season

BUTCH Nowack's bon mot, "Everybody out for spring practice," which he pulled when the crack of the field judge's gun ended the Illinois-Ohio State game, gives an example of the spirit of the new leader of the fighting Illini, happy over their feat in winning the Big Ten championship.

At that, "spring" practice isn't so far off as some persons might imagine. Already freshmen are looking forward to February and a chance to show their ability to Bob Zupke and his assistant coaches. The fact that Illinois awarded 28 varsity football letters in 1927 season has proved a great encouragement to the youngsters who aspired to gridiron glory at Illinois. This is the largest number of honor jerseys ever recommended by Zupke, but if he can find enough players to continue his system of frequent changing of men, it is probable that awards of similar number will become the rule.

Seventeen letter men will compose the nucleus for the 1928 eleven. On the face of it Zupke can build a pretty fair team with Richmond, center; McClure, Crane and Wietz, guards; Nowack, Gordon and Purdick, tackles; Grange, Wolgast, Jolley, Delaney and Short, ends, and Stuessy, Timm, Walker, Hubbard and Miller, fullbacks. Then Jack Lanum, varsity back and punter in 1926, it is expected, will return.

But observers say that there are several freshmen good enough to promise some of these regulars a stiff brush for their positions and probably others will be uncovered at spring practice.

LOU GEHRIG SIGNS UP FOR THREE YEARS

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Lou Gehrig, the other half of the Yankees' home run twins, has signed a three-year contract. The first baseman's salary was not made known but the guessers suggested that $25,000 a year would not be far wrong. In 1927, when Gehrig bagged 47 homers as against Babe Ruth's record 60, the young slugger received only $8,000 aside from the world series money.

BRAINERD Y. M. C. A. DROP CLOSE BATTLE TO DEER CREEK FIVE

MERICKEL, WADENA STAR, GETS
THROUGH IN LAST THREE
MINUTES TO CINCH GAME

FITZHARRIS, NUTTING AND HESS
TEAM UP WELL AS LOCALS'
SCORING TRIO

The Brainerd Y. M. C. A. cage squad lost to Deer Creek last evening at the latter's diminutive floor by the count of 44 to 39. Merickel, former University of Minnesota player, and Martin of Wadena, brought to Deer Creek for the game against Brainerd, contributed to the defeat of the locals. Merickel was high scorer with 12 baskets to his credit.

Fitzharris, Nutting and Hess teamed up in fine fashion in a scoring combination for Brainerd while Welch, running guard, played a splendid floor game. He scored two baskets. Fitzsimmons also played a good defensive game.

"This is the first time the squad has played together. The team play will be perfected in proper style to meet the Minneapolis Y. M. C. A. here January 16," said Marvin Nutting, captain of the team.

A return game will be played with Deer Creek here later in the season. With the score tied 39-39, with three minutes to go, Merickel broke through with three baskets to sew up the game.

Even at this late date there remains a modicum of suspicion among the fistie fraternity that Jack Sharkey of Boston will sustain an injury in training which will prevent his meeting Tom Heeneey of New Zealand next Friday night.

Jack Delaney, former light heavyweight champion, who recently was sold for $50,000, is working out daily, prepared to serve as substitute for the big Lithuanian against the rugged New Zealander.

Such suspicion of Sharkey's durability—or are his good intentions questioned?—is unjustified. The Bostonian has always given every evidence of great gameness, and certainly there is no reason for him to fear a meeting with Tom Heeneey.

There is just this to be said: If such is the case, it will be those who are arranging the hypothetical outdoor bout who will be responsible, not Sharkey.

The Bostonian probably will go through with the bout next week, and probably will defeat Heeneey easily.

Tom is not in Jack's class, despite a deal of improvement displayed by the New Zealander since coming to this country.

The Sharkey who was ready for Dempsey last June should be able to stop an awkward fighter like Heeneey before the end of 15 rounds. The Antipodean is strong and willing, and undoubtedly will subject Sharkey to some dangerous body punishment, if he can penetrate Jack's guard.

This is the only dangerous part of the affair: will the body blows all land cleanly, and will Sharkey be sure they are landing cleanly and not forcing himself and once more start a boxing scandal by yelling "Foul."

The expression "Better knock on wood" came from the placing of the hand on the statue or effigy of a deity to ward off misfortune in event of boastfulness.

PUTS HIM DOWN FOR TWO COUNTS OF NINE EACH

SUPERIOR BOXING AND CONDI-
TION OF LOUGHRAN STAVE
OFF DEFEAT

IN FIRST FEW ROUNDS LOMSKI
LOOKED LIKE NEW CHAMPION

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Tommy Loughran's ring policy of taking on all comers for the light heavyweight championship came near ending disastrously in Madison Square Garden last night when Leo Lomski, a blond terror from the State of Washington, floored the champion twice in the first round.

Loughran came up out of the resin dust after two counts of nine each and fought in a daze for the first few rounds, but his superior boxing skill and perfectly conditioned fighting body staved off impending defeat and he carried on to win the toughest fight of his career.

The ripping, tearing Lomski was out-boxed and made to look bad in the latter rounds of the 15-round bout, but in the first round and several rounds thereafter he looked like the new 175 pound champion.

Rushing out of his corner like a tiger-man, Lomski knocked Loughran a somersault half way across the ring with a crashing right flush to the jaw in less than a minute of fighting in the opening round.

Loughran came too quickly and was on his knee at six, but did not arise until the count reached nine.

Lomski tore in after the champion, and less than a minute later knocked him sprawling with another terrific right to the jaw which left Loughran weak and bewildered. Loughran got up slowly at nine and stayed away from Lomski for the rest of the round.

Loughran said in his dressing room after the fight that he didn't remember being knocked down a second time.

"The second right to my jaw must have knocked me senseless, for I do not remember being on the floor more than once," he said. "From the first round until the fifth I fought in a daze. Lomski is a good, game fighter and my how he can sock."

Until he was floored twice by Lomski, Loughran had been knocked down only two other times in his career. Gene Tunney knocked him down in the first 30 seconds of the first round of a no-decision bout at Philadelphia in 1922 and Pal Reid of Boston knocked him down for a nine count in the third round of a bout at Newark four years ago. In the latter bout Loughran got up to win the decision just as he did against Lomski.

"It was a close fight any way you take it," he said. "I want a return bout as soon as I can get it and next time I'll lick him."

Although he was badly outclassed toward the end of the bout, Lomski never once relinquished the offensive. He kept everlastingly after Loughran, swinging wildly and ineffectively, but always moving in the direction of his target.

And Tommy had to call upon every trick known to ring science to outpoint this slam-bang, rough and ready westerner.

A crowd of 15,000 paid $78,000 to see the bout.

New York, Jan. 7.—(U.P.)—Tommy Loughran will forget the ring for a while now that he has disposed of all of the outstanding challengers for the light heavyweight title. He leaves for a few months vacation in South America about January 15.

"I've done enough fighting now and I don't want to think about the ring for a few months," he said. "When another fellow comes along I'll be ready and willing to give him a bout."

Loughran is undecided about entering the heavyweight division and trying to get a bout with Gene Tunney.
